Serbia Telecom's substantial donation resulted in today's opening of a new and equipped hematology and oncology ward for children at Internal Clinic for childhood diseases of Clinic Center in Niš. In this way the basic conditions for curing children with cancer were improved. Over one million dinars worth donation is used to provide new medical equipment and to reconstruct children's hemo an oncology ward. Among the donated equipment there are precise devices for receiving therapy which enables better and easier everyday dealing with the youngest patients. New infusion pumps were also provided, as well as central oxygen input and pulse oximeters. The toilets and the kitchen were also adapted.

It is very important that our friends from Telecom understood our goals to improve the quality of treating children at hematology and oncology wards throughout Serbia. Our aim, which is also a realistic and great need, is to level and balance treating conditions at all wards. A great step in this direction was made due to Telecom's donation, says mr. Todor Mancic, the head of National Association of Parents of Children with Cancer. During the visit to Internal Children's Clinic, Milica Markovic, the director of PR Sector in Serbia Telecom, surprised the children with gifts. Vladimir Lučić, the director of Telecom's Commercial sector, also attended and announced further plans of supporting Clinical Center in Niš- 'Besides this donation that is already realised, we are planning to set free wireless internet connection and provide the children patients with lap tops; thus they can communicate with their friends and hospital days will be easier and shorter- says mr.
